Something I've been pondering...what makes SCA such a great place? What is it that happens here, on a daily basis that would cause parents to sacrificially choose to trust us with the education and formation of their children during the school day? Although I can see many reasons, I think the one that pops out most often for me is that I see children being loved and guided along their educational path every day. Not just loved with the limitations we as humans have to offer, but loved with the power and the presence of God who dwells in each person on staff. Children are also guided - again, not with the limitations of our human resources, but with a wisdom that God gives. It's a wisdom our staff prays for every morning when we come together before the Lord and lift up your families in prayer.

We're not just holding children's hands on a journey. We're developing passionate pilgrims who will pursue God's very best for their lives, young pilgrims who will live, grow, and give with a divine purpose. That makes this school a pretty special place!

Thank you for allowing us to join you in developing your "world-changing pilgrim."
